Fatherhood Initiative

The Gateway Group of Asheville Fatherhood Program is designed to help fathers be involved, responsible, and committed to their children and families through either improving and/or developing skills and knowledge in parenting, self-awareness, self-care and communications. The goal is to build healthy family relationships, improving father-child engagement and increasing the economic capacity of participants.

The program is modeled after the National Fatherhood Initiative evidence-based program and curriculum which has the objective of equipping fathers to be intentionally and proactively engaged in their children's lives.

Motherhood Initiative

The program goal is to assist mothers to be more knowledgeable, aware, confident, and skillful at engaging in parenting, co-parenting and other relationships for the benefit of their children and the health of their family. The goal is to build healthy family relationships, improving mother-child engagement and increasing the economic capacity of participants.

When both parents can effectively co-parent together, their children benefit greatly.
